

Virtual live seminar Mastermind success through personal effectiveness

"Success doesn't come to you, you go to it." – Marva Collins

What do you need to succeed? Some shocking statistics confirm that people, from teenagers to adults, suffer from low self-confidence and self-esteem which prevents their success. They often have no trust in themselves and their abilities. The impact this has, not only on their professional success but also on their personal lives, wellbeing, performance, inner world and relationships, is often ignored.

This inspiring seminar aims at boosting participants' self confidence and self-esteem by presenting simple ways this can be achieved. Real life examples and research findings will be discussed during the seminar.

Who should attend the seminar?

- Junior or senior executives who would like to accomplish more in their professional and personal lives
- Any professional who would like to feel better about themselves, get a confidence boost and learn ways of improving their self-esteem to succeed in life
- Anyone going through a difficult phase and needs motivation and inspiration to continue (eg. exams, interviews, new career, new job)
- Anyone who looks in the mirror and doesn't trust the image they see "can actually do it"
